APM Congratulates Holland College Hurricanes on their win The Hurricanes celebrated their Atlantic Football League championship victory of the UNB Red Bombers over the weekend

CHARLOTTETOWN – APM congratulates the Holland College Hurricanes on their triumph as the champions of the Atlantic Football League. APM is the premier sponsor of the Canes and has been rooting for them at every home game this season.

This is the first intercollegiate football victory for PEI in over fifty years. The team hosted the championship game on their home field and shut out the University of New Brunswick in a 28-0 game.

CEO Tim Banks is extending sincere congratulations to the team and its management after such a successful season.

“We know that Holland College produces top-notch students, but now we can also brag that they produce the best athletes in the Maritimes. I know that the team put a lot into this season and it is nice to see hard work pay off in such a spectacular way. Congratulations to the team and its management and as sponsor of this team, we couldn’t be happier.”

Mr. Banks says that the home games have been well-attended and well run. He offers special acknowledgment to the other students involved in the games, including the culinary students who volunteered their time to make food for the games.

“Holland College has a community atmosphere that fosters excellence and APM is pleased to give back to the institution. APM hires many Holland College graduates and we are thankful for the quality education that it gives people starting in the trades.”
